Fiscal Analysis

ASSUMPTIONS:

1. The bill establishes that a commitment may not exceed the period for which the defendant could be incarcerated had the defendant been convicted and received the maximum sentence.
2. Under the bill, involuntary civil commitment proceedings may be instituted upon the defendant's release due to the expiration of the maximum sentence. Under current law (Title 53, Chapter 21) a petition for commitment can currently be executed at any time by any person having knowledge of another person suffering from mental disorders.
3. This bill has no fiscal impact on the state.
